Headline:

Cloud and some rain moving southeast tonight.

This Evening and Tonight:

Cloud and some rain moving southeast across northern and central areas. Clear spells allowing some fog patches to form again over east and southeast England, and later across parts of southern Scotland, far north of England and Northern Ireland.

Sunday:

Cloud and some drizzle moving south across southern areas, elsewhere fog patches clearing, then many places dry with sunny spells. Windy with showers, some heavy in the far north.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:

Many areas fine with variable cloud and some sunshine at times. Some rain in the north at times, focused on northwest Scotland. Temperatures around average with chilly nights for some.
